267. Finegan, James W. The Emerald Fairway & Foam-Flecked Seas a Golfers pilgrimage to the golf courses of Ireland USA Simon and Schuster 1996

287pp Signed by the author. Every golfer dreams of making a pilgrimage to the British Isles, to play the exhilarating game to be found on the ground that links land and sea. Increasingly, golfers on this side of the Atlantic have discovered that some of the most magnificent courses in the world-- and some of the most beautiful countryside-- are to be found not in Scotland, but in its near neighbor, Ireland. From the opening drive at Lahinch, just thirty miles from your arrival point at Shannon International Airport, to the spectacular dune-framed holes at Ballybunion, Ireland boasts an extraordinary collection of seaside links. Royal Country Down, Royal Portrush, Portmarnock, Portstewart, Waterville and the Island, the European Club and Baltry-- any one of these would be reason to cross an ocean, and the concentration of all of them on a land mass smaller than the state of Maine makes for a golfer s paradise limited only by your budget and your time. For the tourist or the dreamer, there can be no better guide than James W. Finegan. A passionate advocate and a charming storyteller, Finegan combines a writer s eye, a historian s knowledge, and a golfer s sense of wonder and apprehension to provide an impossibly ambitious grand tour of this beautiful land. In a loop that begins in the West at Lahinch and continues clockwise through both the Republic and Northern Ireland, Finegan covers more than fifty courses, visiting those that have become true shrines of the game, the courses that are well known and respected, and the little-known gems you might otherwise pass right by. He shares the history of the courses, and writes marvelously about the scenic and strategic charms to be found as you play them yourself. And he provides all the information you need to make your arrangements to do just that-- because unlike most championship courses in the United States, the great courses of Ireland are available to the public. In addition to his delightful descriptions of the golf to be found there, Finegan gives us his recommendations for places to stay, ranging from the most modest bed and breakfast to the most magnificent palace-- some thirty accommodations in all. He describes the pleasures to be found off the beaten track: the spectacular views from a country road, or the ancient cathedral that s worth a stop on the way to the first tee. And because all the travel within the country is done by car, he spells out the actual route from town to town and course to course, as he lays out an itinerary that will surely encounter almost all of the fabled 40 shades of green. Emerald Fairways and Foam-Flecked Seas is a book to be read, to be savored, and to be tucked away in your suitcase when you finally undertake the journey of your dreams. Fine

IMPORTANT AND RARE FIRST EDITION OF FORGAN'S HANDBOOK

279. Forgan, Robert. The Golfer's Handbook. Cupar, Scotland: John Innes, 1881.

83, [1] + [6] ad pp. Illustrated with 4 engraved plates; plus figure drawings within text. 7x4<sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>, publisher's green cloth-backed pictorial printed gray paper over boards. First Edition. The first golf book to be successful in sales. Forgan founded a famous club-making firm in St. Andrews and his old shop is still open as a museum for visitors. Murdoch states: "This book, somewhat like The Golfer's Manual (1857) in style but considerably more comprehensive in content, includes instruction, history, outstanding golf feats and other golfiana, such as a reprint of a magazine article by Horace G. Hutchinson and a ballade by Andrew Lang. It also includes 'Rules', the local rules for the Old Course at St. Andrews, a 'Glossary of Technical Terms' and a list of 'Clubs in Great Britain,' which included, at this early date, six in Ireland." First published in 1881 by John Innes, Cupar, Scotland, the book went into numerous reprintings. This is the rare 1st edition, in excellent condition. Ex- Edinburgh public library, with some small library stamps, and a bookplate on inner board, not detracting from this exceptional title.

337. Golfing Union of Ireland Open Championship of Ireland Royal Portrush Golf Links, Portrush Golfing Union of Ireland 1947

pp. rare programme to a great event. Won in 2016 by Rory McIlroy. The 1947 winner Harry Bradshaw won by 2 stroke over Flory van Donk

The first Irish Open in 1927 was played at Portmarnock Golf Club from 16 to 18 August. There were 18 holes played on the first two days with the leading 60 players and ties playing a further 36 holes on the final day. In a stiff breeze local professional Willie Nolan led after the first day with a course record 72.[1] On the second day Nolan faded after an 81 and the lead was taken by Henry Cotton on 146 with Jack Smith a shot behind. The cut was 165 and exactly 60 players qualified, including 6 amateurs.[2] Conditions were very poor on the final day with the refreshment and press tents blown down and rain falling in torrents. Jack Smith had an excellent 77 in the morning and with Henry Cotton taking 86, Smith had an 8-shot lead over Cotton and Archie Compston. Smith, however, went to pieces and had a final round of 91 and was overtaken by Cotton, who took 81. George Duncan, starting the final round 14 shots behind, scored 74 and finished with a total of 312, beating Smith by 3 and Cotton by 1. Duncan's score of 74 was remarkable in that it was only two strokes over the new course record, on a day when his 74 and Smith's 77 in the morning were the only two rounds under 80 on the final day. Duncan took the Championship Gold Medal and the first prize of £150. Nolan was the leading Irishman, finishing fifth.[3]

In 1932 and 1933, the Irish Open was preceded by an international match between teams of English and Irish professionals. England won the first match 16–2 and the second match 13–3 with 2 halves.[4][5] The matches followed the same form as the England–Scotland Professional Match that had been played just before the Open Championship.

The Irish Open has generally been played in June, July, or August, but from 2004 to 2009 it was played in May, the week before the BMW PGA Championship. In 2010 and 2011 the tournament was moved to a later date at the end of July, while from 2012 to 2014 it was played in late June.

The Irish Open enjoys one of the largest galleries on the European Tour. In 2010, the Irish Open at Killarney Golf & Fishing Club had an attendance of 85,179 over four days, second only to the BMW PGA Championship. In 2011, the Irish Open at Killarney Golf & Fishing Club tallied in excess of 86,500 over four days. This was again the second highest on the European Tour to the BMW PGA Championship. In 2012, the Irish Open at Royal Portrush Golf Club had a record attendance of 112,000 over four days; 131,000 over the six days. This was the only time a European Tour event had sold out prior to play on all four days and was the highest attendance ever recorded on the European Tour.

Since 2008 it has been the only European Tour event played in Ireland. The European Open was held at the K Club in Straffan for thirteen years from 1995 to 2007 while the 2007 Seve Trophy and the 2006 Ryder Cup were the last major team competitions played in Ireland.

607. Marsh, Thomas (probably). Nil. Greenwich Privately printed 1894.

Titled. "NIL" Spring Medal 1894. Ship. Greenwich. This is a 80 line lay of approx 650 words privately printed on a single folded sheet comprising title page with pagination being 1-3. The lay was written as read as part of the after-dinner ceremonial honouring the services of past field-marshals and captains and the installation of current ones for the year 1894. Elected were LT. Col. Kennard (Field Marshal) and William Morris (Captain). the pre-amble to the evenings dinner was the match for the Spring Medal of the Knuckle Club. The Dinner and ceremonials were held at the Ship Hotel in Greenwich herein referred to as "aboard the Old Ship". A member of the club and a special guest of this anniversary Dinner was Sir Stuart Knill who became Lord Mayor of London in 1893. In 1893 Knill had entertained the Blackheath Golf Club to a lavish 7 course meal which was held at the Mansion House. The title of the poem "NIL" in all probability refers to Knill, the special guest of honour. Likewise this lay was probably written by Thomas Marsh, the poet laureate of the club. Anniversary dinners were traditionally accompanied by readings from Marsh during the installation following the Ceremony of the Quaich. Furthermore the structure and rhythmic arrangement is identical to his works published as Blackheath Golfing Lays. Detailed records of many Dinners were either lost and/or misplaced only to be reported in the local newspapers. Given the age, fragility, membership numbers of the Club (less than 100) limited Dinner invitees, this is indeed a very rear item.

958. Tait, Freddie. Photograph Cabinet. St. Andrews. ca. 1890

Rare cabinet photo, Frederick Guthrie Tait (11 January 1870 – 7 February 1900) was an amateur golfer and Scottish soldier. He won the Amateur Championship twice, in 1896 and again in 1898, by convincing margins. Over his short golf career, Tait recorded at least 28 tournament victories. He tied for third place in the Open Championship in both 1896 and 1897.

Tait was killed in action at Koodoosberg, South Africa, during the Second Boer War on 7 February 1900 and is buried there.

967. Taylor, J.H. "editor by" The Golfer's Record of Games. London: Dow and Low. n.d. ca. 1920

n.d. circa 1920 100pp Taylor writes the introduction "The marvelous spread of the game of Golf during the last decade, and the multitude of Links that are now to be found scattered up and down the country, are responsible for the migratory habits of the modern Golfer.

He is not content to confine his prowess to his own particular district, but rather is he inclined to wander further afield in order to test the possibilities of different courses, and by so doing to improve and consolidate his stock of playing knowledge, for it has passed into a truism that nothing improves one's game more than playing over different courses, which has the effect of expanding the player's golfing intellect of how the various strokes should be played under the manifold conditions of wind, weather, and environment.

This multiplicity of Links, proving as it does the strongest possible evidence in favour of the healthiness of the game, yet has its drawbacks to the Golfer of wandering tendencies, inasmuch as it is impossible for him to carry in his mind the peculiarities and subtleties of its own that every course undoubtedly possesses in the way that the hazards are placed, the state of the greens and of the many and one things that strike the eye on the occasion of a first visit.

In this little Book the golfing public can make such memoranda at the time. which may be referred to again whenever necessary, thereby fortifying the player against the dangers and troubles that lie ahead of him, and which must be encountered during the progress of the game.

For this reason I hope the Book will be acceptable. and also prove a pleasing record of games that have been played.
